Are You in the Correct Help System?

WebLogic Workshop can display help from online BEA documentation servers or from your local disk. The content of these help systems will vary depending on your installation. In particular, third-party control help is not included in the online documentation, but may be present in the help on your local disk if you have installed one or more third-party Java controls or IDE extensions.

To learn how to switch between the online and local help systems, see Using WebLogic Workshop Help.
