5.2 Risk Profiling

Banks/ investment advisers have a practice of doing a “Risk Profile” of the prospective investor. A risk profile is an evaluation of an investor's attitude and ability to take risks. Risk profiling involves the assessment of investor psychological level with the volatility of capital markets. A risk profile is important to determine which asset should be allocated to an investor's portfolio.

A risk profiling involves the series of questionnaire and based on the answers assign a risk profile to the investor. The tolerance to risk is reflected in the “Asset Allocation” that the bank recommends to the investor. Aggressive investors who have high tolerance to equity usually have a high percentage of Equity in their allocation, conservative investors tend to have more of debt. The MF portfolio that the investor invests has to match his/ her asset allocation, which is based on risk profile.

Note: The risk profile questionnaire, recommended asset allocation will be fetched from mutual fund processor. OBDX will display the questionnaire, capture the answers and pass them on to the mutual fund processor. Further, the computation of risk profile based on user provided answers will happen at mutual fund processors and will be communicated to OBDX which will display it to the user.

This module includes following transactions:

- Purchase Mutual funds
- Redeem Mutual funds
- Switch Mutual funds
- Order Status

6.1 Purchase Mutual Funds

Mutual Funds (MFs) are investment instruments fund collects money from investors and invests the money on their behalf. It is one of the top investment choices for retail investors that allows the investors to view and manage the professionally managed portfolios of instruments like equity shares, bonds, insurance etc. Some mutual funds are also traded in stock exchanges - these are called Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs). Mutual Funds are managed by a fund manager. The investor share of investment is called as "Units" that represents the ownership of the investor in the scheme.

The investor make the purchase of Mutual fund units, or shares, based on the fund's current market value of the fund's investment portfolio which is termed as net asset value (NAV) per share/ NAVPS. A fund's NAV is derived by dividing the total value of the securities in the portfolio by the total amount of shares outstanding.

The investor (retail user) can purchase single or multiple mutual funds in one go and can place orders to be executed same day or at any future date. Further customer can place one time lump sum order or a recurring order called Systematic Investment. The investor can buy mutual funds from their existing schemes as well as invest on new schemes. The OBDX allows the user (investor) to view the list of recommended funds and top purchase funds so that he can take a decision of buying the funds.
