Chapter 3 - Overview

About Country Limit Amendment

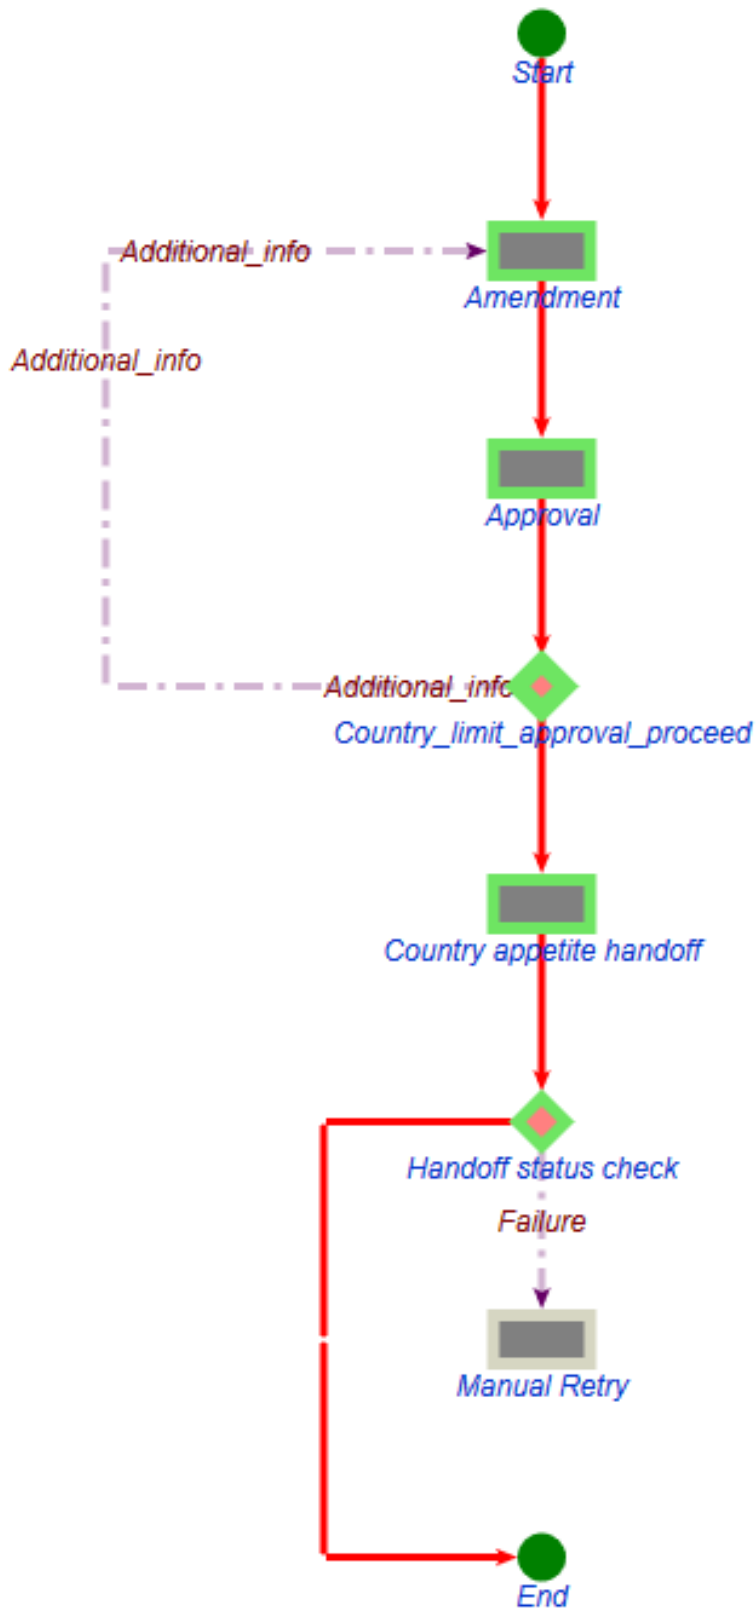

Banks might want to modify the credit limit set for countries for several reasons. Some of which include:

- The country's credit worth is increased due to economical changes
- Banks have more capital to be allocated to the country due to a higher profitability from that country

The Country Limit Amendment process in OBCFPM is a simple two-stage workflow for modifying and approving country limit set for the countries. This process can be initiated for all the countries for which credit limit is already set based on the requirement. Once the country limit is successfully modified for a particular country, the modified limit will be used for validating the overall limit set for a sector in that country.

The flow diagram illustrating the Country Limit Amendment process is shown below for reference:

Chapter 3 - Overview

Chapter 4 - Initiation

To initiate the Country Limit Amendment process:
