Action: Check that WS business service or the target webservice is functioning properly.

OSB-381413: URI: {{0}} of WS proxy service has '/' at the end.

OSB-381414: Attempting an indirect send to a WS transport proxy which requires BASIC authentication {{0}}. Proxy-to-proxy routing and test console access are not allowed with this pattern.

Cause: WS transport proxy services which require username/password (i.e. BASIC) authentication cannot be invoked from another proxy or from the test console.

Action: Check the message flow configuration and make sure there are no proxy-to-proxy routes where the target proxy service is a WS transport endpoint with BASIC authentication. Also, whenever using the test console to test such a WS transport proxy, make sure you set the "direct call" check-box to true.

OSB-381415: X.509 token identity assertion is not enabled in the security realm. An identity asserter with X.509 token support enabled is required because ws proxy service "{{0}}" has a ws-policy which requires CLIENT-CERT authentication

OSB-381417: WS transport proxy "(0)" is configured with client-certificate-required policy and is deployed in a cluster. There is typically a load-balancer between the client and the cluster. The load balancer forwards client-certificates to the server, but the server will only honor this certificate if it is configured with "Client Cert Proxy Enabled", otherwise the certificate will be ignored and the request will fail.

Cause: Typically, when a WS transport proxy is configured with client-certificate-required policy and is deployed in a cluster, the managed servers must be configured with "Client Cert Proxy Enabled". This is so that the managed servers will honor the certificate in the "WL-Proxy-Client-Cert" HTTP header. Make sure to read the section on SSL configuration in WebLogic Server documentation when using this feature.

Action: Set "Client Cert Proxy Enabled" to true in the WLS console. This can be done at the cluster level or individually for each managed server in the cluster. Make sure to read the section on SSL configuration in WebLogic Server documentation when using this feature. Use a weblogic.security.net.ConnectionFilter to ensure that this WebLogic Server instance accepts connections only from the machine on which the proxy-server plugin is running, otherwise you will create a security vulnerability because the WL-Proxy-Client-Cert header can be spoofed.

OSB-386041: key-pair binding with alias "{1}" and purpose "{2}", but there is no such key-pair binding in the PKI Credential Mapper Provider in your security realm
Cause: In older release of ALSB (2.0 and 2.1), ALSB did not include the password to service key provider key-pair credentials in exported configuration jar files. When such a service key provider is later imported into subsequent releases, OSB expects the key-pair binding to already be present in the PKI Credential Mapper Provider. To do that, you would export the PKI Credential Mapper Provider data from your previous domain and import it into your new domain. NOTE: It is recommended that you instead re-configure this service key provider credentials, that way OSB will keep an encrypted copy of the key-pair’s password and this error will not happen again

Cause: An unexpected error occurred. The service definition is invalid.

Action: Contact Oracle Support Services

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Configuration

OSB-398060: The ws-policy of operation "{1}" in proxy service "{0}" contains a concrete confidentiality assertion. Confidentiality assertions assigned to proxy services must be abstract, the encryption certificate must not be embedded in the policy.

Cause: The proxy service is a WS-Security (web services security) active intermediary. Its ws-policy includes a "confidentiality" assertion (this is a Oracle-proprietary policy assertion which specifies that the client must encrypt the request message). This confidentiality assertion is concrete. That means the policy includes a base-64 encoded certificate (in the /wssp:Confidentiality/wssp:KeyInfo/wssp:SecurityTokenReference/wssp:Embedded/wsse:BinarySecurityToken element). Proxy services should not have concrete confidentiality assertions on its policy because the proxy's encryption certificate is assigned through a service key provider.

Action: Make the policy abstract. To do this edit the policy and delete the SecurityToken and SecurityTokenReference child elements inside the /wssp:Confidentiality/wssp:KeyInfo element.

Type: ERROR
Impact: Configuration

OSB-398061: The ws-policy of operation "{1}" in business service "{0}" contains an abstract confidentiality assertion. Confidentiality assertions assigned to business services must not be abstract, the encryption certificate must be embedded in the policy.

Cause: The ws-policy of the business service includes a "confidentiality" assertion (this is a Oracle-proprietary policy assertion which specifies that request messages to this service must be encrypted). This confidentiality assertion is abstract. That means the policy does not include an embedded base-64 encoded server certificate. The confidentiality assertion must be concrete.

Action: Make the policy concrete. To do this edit the policy and make sure there are SecurityToken and SecurityTokenReference child elements inside the /wssp:Confidentiality/wssp:KeyInfo element. The value of the SecurityTokenReference element is an embedded base-64 encoded server certificate (it must be the server's encryption certificate). Consult Oracle Service Bus security documentation to find examples of what this policy should look like.

OSB-398140: Proxy service "[0]" is a passive wss intermediary. The ws-policy of operation "[1]" contains an abstract confidentiality assertion but the proxy service does not have a service key provider reference or the referenced service key provider does not have an encryption credential. You will be able to invoke this proxy service but its effective WSDL will not have an encryption certificate. Clients must get this certificate out-of-band.

Cause: A passive WSS intermediary is a proxy service which has a WS-Security policy in its public WSDL (i.e., its "effective" WSDL), but which does not perform any WS-Security processing. It simply relays the security header to a back-end service. Whenever a passive WSS intermediary has an "abstract confidentiality" policy, the proxy should have a service key provider which, in turn, must have an encryption credential. Type: ERROR
Impact: Requests/Responses

OSB-2031601: Unable to deliver the message for process "{0}" and operation "{2}". It does not match any start activity.

Cause: The inbound message does not match a start activity and it contains no correlation properties. As such, it will never be able to be delivered to a process instance.

Action: Either modify the message so it will correlate (different process, partner link, operation or correlation properties) or modify the process.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Requests/Responses

OSB-2031602: Unable to deliver the message for process "{0}" and operation "{2}". It does not match any inbound messaging activities.
Cause: There are no inbound message activities for the partner link and operation of the message. The message cannot be delivered to any instance of the given process.

Action: Either modify the message so it does match an inbound messaging activity (different process, partner link or operation) or modify the process to match the message.

Impact: Requests/Responses

OSB-2031608: Unable to determine correlation properties. Correlation set "[0]" has already been initiated.

Cause: A correlation set that has an initiate value of "YES" has already been initiated. An initiate value of "YES" means that the correlation set should NOT be initiated as it will be initiated using the values of the inbound message.

Action: Modify the process to ensure that correlation sets are NOT initiated before they should be.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Requests/Responses

OSB-2031609: Unable to determine correlation properties. Correlation set "[0]" has different property values.

Cause: A message that has already been matched to a messaging activity has different correlation properties than the correlation set values associated to the messaging activity. This generally occurs for outbound messages (since the inbound messages wouldn’t have matched this instance if they didn’t match).

Action: Ensure that the outbound message has the same correlation properties as the messaging activity.

  Cause: A text boilerplate object was created that contains no text.
  Action: Enter some text in the boilerplate object, or delete it.
  Level: 1
  Type: ERROR
  Impact: Other

REP-01301: The data link creates a sibling of group {0} within a cross product.
Cause: A data link was defined that created a sibling of a dimension group within a cross product group. No siblings of dimension groups are allowed within the cross product.

Action: Delete the sibling of the dimension group.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Data

REP-01302: The cross product has two or more child groups.

Cause: A cross product group has more than one child group. Only one child is allowed per cross product group.

Action: Remove all but one of the child groups to the cross product group.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01303: The query must be completely in or out of cross product group {0}.

REP-01305: Frame {0} intersects but does not enclose object {1}.

Cause: The report layout contains a frame that does not completely enclose the named object. Thus, the object is not considered to be inside the frame.

Action: To enclose the object with the frame, resize or move the frame.

REP-01306: Summary column {0} has an invalid source.

Cause: An invalid source was specified for the summary column. A summary column's source must be from the same group as the summary column, or from a group below the summary column.
Action: Change the source of the summary column to be from the same group as the summary column or from a group below the summary column.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01307: Summary column [0] has an invalid product order.
Cause: The possible causes of this error include: Case 1: A summary exists that is not a running summary (that is, its Reset At is not Report), but its Product Order is not a subset of the source column’s product order. The source column of the summary must be at least as frequent as the summary, which means that the summary’s Product Order should be some subset of the source column’s Product Order. Case 2: A running summary (that is, its Reset At is Report) exists with a Product Order that is not a prefix of the source column’s Product Order. For example, if the source column’s Product Order were A,B,C, then the summary column’s Product Order would have to be either A (by itself) or A,B. The summary’s Product Order could not be B,A.
Action: Take the following actions to correct this error: If Case 1: Change the Product Order of the summary such that it is a subset of its source column’s Product Order. If Case 2: Change the Product Order of the summary such that it is a prefix of the Source column’s Product Order.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01308: Placeholder column [0] is not supported in a cross product.

Action: Delete the placeholder or move it outside the cross product group.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01309: Report level summary [0] cannot be a percent of total.
Cause: A summary was created at the report-level (that is, a summary outside of all the groups in the data model) with a Function of % of Total. This Function makes no sense for a report-level summary because it will always be 100%.
Action: Delete the summary or move it into a group where it will make sense.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01310: Boilerplate [0] references &[1] which is not a field.
Cause: A boilerplate object has a reference to a field that does not exist. It could be that the field being referenced was deleted or renamed and so this reference in the boilerplate object is now invalid.
Action: Depending on circumstances, remove the reference, replace it with a reference to another field, or create the field that it references.
Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01311: Object {0} with page-dependent references have been changed to fixed sizing.
Cause: A field or boilerplate object has a reference to a page calculation or a total number of pages variable. (This is known as a forward reference.) Such layout objects must be fixed in size both horizontally and vertically.
Action: The layout object's Horizontal and Vertical Elasticity have been set to Fixed by Oracle Reports Builder. Check the output to ensure that the values are not being truncated. If they are, enlarge the layout object so that it is large enough to contain the values.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01312: Page-level column {1} may not be referenced from graph {0}.
Cause: A column passed to a graph is or depends upon a page-level summary (that is, a summary with a Reset At or Compute At of Page). A column being passed to a graph cannot be or depend upon a page-level summary.
Action: Do not pass the column to the graph.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01313: Page-level column {1} may not be referenced from group filter {0}.
Cause: A column that was referenced in a group filter is or depends upon a page-level summary (that is, a summary with a Reset At or Compute At of Page). A column referenced by a group filter cannot be or depend upon a page-level summary.
Action: Do not reference the column in the group filter.

REP-01318: An error occurred while setting transaction to read-only.

Cause: Having specified READONLY=YES, this error occurred at the start of report execution, while ending the current transaction (with a COMMIT) and starting the read-only transaction, or at the end of report execution, while ending the read-only transaction (with a COMMIT).

Action: Verify the database connection, and verify that no cursors or locks were left pending by the previous transaction.

REP-01319: Implicit anchoring algorithm cannot uniquely identify the anchoring object {0}. Arbitrarily choosing {1}.

Cause: The specified object (object1) is in the "push path" of two objects and it is equidistant from both objects. As a result, Oracle Reports Builder cannot use its normal criteria (shortest distance) to determine the implicit anchor. In the absence of its normal criteria, Oracle Reports Builder randomly creates an implicit anchor to the specified object (object2). Note that the implicit anchor may vary between runs of the report.

Action: To avoid the random creation of an implicit anchor, explicitly anchor the specified object (object1) to another object.
REP-01320: Program unit {0} references a column with invalid ID {1}.
Cause: A report was run containing invalid PL/SQL (for example, PL/SQL that did not compile). The PL/SQL source included a column reference that cannot be resolved.
Action: Check the column references in the PL/SQL source, recompile all of the PL/SQL source in the report, and rerun the report.
Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01322: Page break after on object {0} has no effect.
Cause: A Page Break After was activated on an object that has no other objects anchored to it (implicitly or explicitly). In this case, Page Break After has no effect and is invalid. Notice that this is a warning, not an error message.
Action: Deactivate Page Break After for the object.
Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01323: Output columns in format trigger {0} are not allowed.
Cause: In the format trigger for the specified object, an attempt was made to set the value of an Oracle Reports Builder column parameter. For example, the value of a column called COUNT1 can be used in a condition (for example, IF :COUNT1=10), but its value cannot be directly set in an assignment statement (for example, COUNT1=10).
Action: Remove the assignment statement from the format trigger.
Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01324: Output columns in group filter {0} are not allowed.
Cause: In the filter for the specified group, an attempt was made to set the value of an Oracle Reports Builder column or parameter. For example, the value of a column called COUNT1 can be used in a condition (for example, IF :COUNT1=10), but its value cannot be directly set in an assignment statement (for example, COUNT1=10).
Action: Remove the assignment statement from the group filter.
Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01325: Output columns in a Between Page Trigger are not allowed.
Cause: In the Between Page trigger, an attempt was made to set the value of an Oracle Reports Builder column or parameter. For example, the value of a column called COUNT1 can be used in a condition (for example, IF :COUNT1=10), but its value cannot be directly set in an assignment statement (for example, COUNT1=10).
Action: Remove the assignment statement from the group filter.

Impact: Other

REP-01326: Trigger \{0\} writes to column \{1\} at the wrong frequency.

Cause: In a report trigger, an attempt was made to set the value of an Oracle Reports Builder column at the wrong frequency in the report. Only report-level columns or parameters can be referenced and set, and any page-dependent columns (that is, Reset At of Page) or columns that rely on page-dependent columns cannot be referenced or set.

Cause: In a formula column, an attempt was made to set the value of an Oracle Reports Builder column at the wrong frequency in the report. Only columns that are in the same group or in a higher group in the group hierarchy can be referenced and set. For example, a formula for a report-level column can only reference other report-level columns.

REP-01330: Lexical parameter {0} in query {1} must not change column dependencies.

Cause: A lexical parameter was created that changes the number, type, or names of columns, or introduces new dependencies on computed columns or new bind references, when the report is run.

Action: Change the lexical parameter so that it does not change columns or introduce new dependencies or bind references.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR
Impact: Other

REP-01331: Column {0} cannot be linked to column {1} because the child column is determined by a lexical parameter.

REP-01332: Group filter for {0} cannot reference column {1}. It is not a valid database column or it depends on a related query.

Cause: A group filter was created that references a database column not in the group’s query or in a query above it, or references a computed column that depends on an unrelated column.

Action: Remove the offending reference from the group filter.

Level: 1
Type: ERROR

REP-01335: Variable rotated text {0} is treated as fixed/contract width.

Cause: The report contains a boilerplate text object that was rotated to an angle that is not a multiple of 90 degrees, although both Horizontal and Vertical Elasticity values were set to Variable or Expand. REP-01340: Passed-in columns do not match report definition {0}.
Cause: Another component (for example, Oracle Forms) passed a query to Oracle Reports Builder and there is a mismatch between the columns passed and the columns expected by Oracle Reports Builder. Possible causes of this error include:
Case 1: Oracle Reports Builder was expecting more or fewer columns than the number that was actually passed by the calling application. Case 2: The parameter list of the calling application described a column differently than what Oracle Reports Builder expected. For example, if the report’s query selects a character column and the calling application assigns that column a date data type, this error is raised.

Action: Take the following actions to correct this error: If Case 1: Ensure that the calling application is passing the same number of columns that Oracle Reports Builder expects. If Case 2: Ensure that the datatypes and names of the columns being passed by the calling application match the datatypes and names in the report.

WLS-WSEE-CORE-00002: The service port {1} bound to https transport in service {0} is NOT available, the https address cannot be resolved because SSL is not enabled for the server. The service port definition will be removed from WSDL that is being accessed through {2}.

Cause: While a WSDL is being retrieved through http protocol, the server requires replacing the service port address in WSDL with the actual address for the server. For any web service which defines one or more service ports bound to https transport, if the domain does not enable SSL functionality then the service port address could not be replaced correctly because https address for the server cannot be resolved.

Action: Enable SSL functionality for the server.

Level: 1
Type: WARNING
Impact: WebService

WLS-WSEE-CORE-00006: Implicit/generated Client Identity {0} has been used in multiple calls to Service.getPort()/createDispatch() where these calls have used different services and/or sets of features. Monitoring statistics for this client will include all these different usages. Validation failures were: {1}

Cause: WebLogic JAX-WS web service clients are assigned a unique identity that is intended to represent the business purpose of that client. This identity can be specified directly using weblogic.jws.jaxws.client.ClientIdentityFeature or it can be allowed to be implicit. Implicit identity is generated automatically based on environmental information at the point where a Port/Dispatch instance is created. Your code has received an implicit client identity that is getting used (again implicitly) across multiple services or sets of features. All statistics gathered for a given client instance are rolled up under the client instance’s client identity. If client instances using different services and/or feature sets contribute statistics to the same client identity, this can be confusing. It is even possible for clients to behave incorrectly when more advanced web service features are used.

Action: Best practice is to create a specific client identity (with a name representing a logical business purpose) for the client and denote this identity by passing `weblogic.jws.jaxws.client.ClientIdentityFeature` to the call to `Service.getPort/createDispatch`. Further, it is recommended that you pass a single/global set of web service feature objects to that call (e.g. Create `WebServiceFeature` instances as static class members or in a method annotated with `@PostConstruct` for containers compatible with this annotation). The actual call to `Service.getPort/createDispatch()` should still be made in any way that makes sense for your uses (e.g. calling `getPort` on demand in a web service method, with `Service` created as a static class member).

WLS-WSEE-00105: Web services async/reliable invocations for service {0} are NOT available because the async/reliability queue was not found: {1}

Cause: You have deployed a Web service that indicates it can use async/reliable features, but the queue for async/reliable invocations (specified in WebservicesMBean, @Buffer or @ReliabilityBuffer annotations, or allowed to default) is not deployed to the local server. Therefore, async and reliable invocations will fail if attempted. Standard synchronous invocations will still work correctly despite this problem.

Action: Remove any async or reliable features from the Web service (e.g. @AsyncResponse, @Buffer, @ReliabilityBuffer annotations or @Policy annotations specifying reliable policy) or properly configure this server for async/reliable invocations. See the WebLogic Server online documentation in the 'Web Services->Get Started Using JAX-RPC' section for help on fixing this configuration problem. For any web service which defines one or more service ports bound to https transport, if the domain does not enable SSL functionality then the service port address could not be replaced correctly because https address for the server cannot be resolved.

WLS-WSEE-00112: Implicit/generated Client Identity \{0\} has been used in multiple calls to Service.getPort()/createDispatch() where these calls have used different services and/or sets of features. Monitoring statistics for this client will include all these different usages. Validation failures were: \{1\}

Cause: WebLogic JAX-WS web service clients are assigned a unique identity that is intended to represent the business purpose of that client. This identity can be specified directly using weblogic.jws.jaxws.client.ClientIdentityFeature or it can be allowed to be implicit. Implicit identity is generated automatically based on environmental information at the point where a Port/Dispatch instance is created. Your code has received an implicit client identity that is getting used (again implicitly) across multiple services or sets of features. All statistics gathered for a given client instance are rolled up under the client instance's client identity. If client instances using different services and/or feature sets contribute statistics to the same client identity, this can be confusing. It is even possible for clients to behave incorrectly when more advanced web service features are used.

Action: Best practice is to create a specific client identity (with a name representing a logical business purpose) for the client and denote this identity by passing weblogic.jws.jaxws.client.ClientIdentityFeature to the call to Service.getPort/createDispatch. Further, it is recommended that you pass a single/global set of web service feature objects to that call (e.g. Create WebServiceFeature instances as static class members or in a method annotated with @PostConstruct for containers compatible with this annotation). The actual call to Service.getPort()/createDispatch() should still be made in any way that makes sense for your uses (e.g. calling getPort on demand in a web service method, with Service created as a static class member).

WLS-WSEE-PERSIST-00007: Improper buffering queue type {0} with JNDI name {1} configured on logical store {2}. You must use Uniform Distributed Queues or simple Queues with web services.

Cause: You configured an invalid type of queue for a logical store (via the RequestBufferingQueueJndiName or ResponseBufferingQueueJndiName properties). You must use Uniform Distributed Queues (recommended) or plain Queues. If you wish to take advantage of migration features of web services in a cluster, you must use Uniform Distributed Queues. Note, when using configuration wizard or WLST to apply the wls_webservice_jaxws.jar extension template, you must explicitly request the creation of Uniform Distributed Queues as described in the web services documentation. By default, the configuration wizard and WLST create Weighted Distributed Queues in a cluster.

Action: Configure a Uniform Distributed Queue (or Queue) and provide this queue’s JNDI name to the logical store configuration (via the RequestBufferingQueueJndiName or ResponseBufferingQueueJndiName properties). Note, you can do this from the configuration wizard or WLST when applying the wls_webservice_jaxws.jar extension template, and the proper type and number of queues will be created automatically for you. See the web services documentation for more information on requesting Uniform Distributed Queues when using the template.

Cause: Runtime code on the client or sending side of an RM sequence couldn't retrieve a policy.
Action: Contact technical support.
Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00005: Server-side couldn't determine if we have RM policy on target service/port
Cause: Runtime code on the service or receiving side of an RM sequence couldn't retrieve a policy.
Action: Contact technical support.
Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00006: No {0} header found on CreateSequenceResponse. Cannot identify sequence to handle this message
Cause: A protocol violation has occurred, and RM cannot identify the message ID of the CreateSequence message by looking at the CreateSequenceResponse message.
Action: Contact the vendor that supplied the RM destination implementation (receiver of CreateSequence message) and indicate a protocol violation.
Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00007: Got CreateSequenceResponse/Accept when no offer was made on sequence with destination-side ID: {0}
Cause: A CreateSequenceResponse message in response to a CreateSequence message that does not contain an Offer element must not itself contain an Accept element.
Action: Contact the vendor that supplied the RM destination implementation (receiver of CreateSequence message) and indicate a protocol violation.
Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00008: Null sequence ID specified/found
Cause: A null value was passed to some internal method taking a sequence identifier where that method does not accept null values.
Action: Contact technical support.
Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00009: Null message ID specified/found
Cause: A null value was passed to some internal method taking a message identifier where that method does not accept null values.
Action: Contact technical support.

Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00010: Attempt to add a sequence that is null or has already been added: {0}
Cause: A null sequence (or a sequence that already has been added to the list of valid sequences) has been detected.
Action: Contact technical support.

Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00011: Attempt to update a sequence that is null or has not been added via addSequence: {0}
Cause: A null sequence (or a sequence that never has been added to the list of valid sequences) has been referenced in an update operation.
Action: Contact technical support.

Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00012: Cannot accept/process this request, and can't assume async response is forthcoming because ReplyTo is anonymous. Cannot continue.
Cause: An incoming request to the RM destination has failed a quality-of-service check (e.g. duplicate or out-of-order) and there is no ReplyTo address to which we can send a fault. Thus, we'll completely abort the processing of this request in order to indicate the failure to the sender.
Action: Send requests according to the quality-of-service requirements of the service.

Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00013: Could not find sequence {0} on {1} side
Cause: No sequence with the given identifier exists on the given side of the RM message exchange.
Action: Specify a different sequence identifier in the protocol message or contact technical support.

Level: 1
Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00014: WsrmClient feature not enabled on this port/stub
Cause: A Port/Dispatch instance was used as if it referenced a reliable service, but the service is in fact not reliable (no WS-RM policy attached to it).
Action: Make the target service reliable (by attaching WS-RM policy to it) or pick a different target service.
Level: 1

Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00015: Cannot call {0} on a sequence that has not yet been fully initialized (no destination sequence ID or CreateSequenceResponse received yet). Source sequence ID: {1}
Cause: You’ve called a WsrmClient method to interact with the sequence before calling (or getting a true result) from WsrmClient.isInitialized().
Action: Please wait until you have completed a synchronous reliable invocation or have gotten true from WsrmClient.isInitialized before calling such a method.
Level: 1

Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00016: Got a message using the wrong WS-RM version for action {0}. Expected {1} but got {2}.
Cause: An RM sequence was negotiated using one version of the RM protocol, and a subsequent message was received indicating a different version.
Action: Make sure all messages related to a given sequence use the same RM protocol version.
Level: 1

Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00017: An unexpected error occurred: {0}
Cause: An unexpected exception has occurred.
Action: Contact technical support.
Level: 1

Type: SEVERE
Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00018: ClientIdentityFeature not enabled or clientId not specified on this port/stub. This is required for WS-RM to track requests and responses for this client.
Cause: A Port/Dispatch instance was created without specifying an 'identity' via the ClientIdentityFeature JAX-WS feature when RM requires such an identity.
Action: Add a ClientIdentityFeature when creating your Port/Dispatch stub instance, and make sure that feature has its clientId field set to a unique, repeatable client ID.

Level: 1

Type: SEVERE

Impact: WebService

WSEE-RM-00019: No ReliabilityErrorListener provided via WsrmClient for a Port/Dispatch instance {0}. The sequence started on the Port/Dispatch instance encountered the following error: {1}

Cause: A Port/Dispatch instance was created without specifying an 'error listener' via the WsrmClient interface. Subsequently, a WS-RM sequence being managed on that Port/Dispatch instance encountered an error and could not notify the client of this error directly.

Action: Add a ReliabilityErrorListener on the Port/Dispatch instance by calling WsrmClient.setErrorListener().

Level: 1

Type: WARNING

Impact: WebService
